

Who Gets Grandma's Yellow Pie Plate?™

Resources to Help You Pass on Personal Possessions

Passing on personal possessions is an issue for everyone!

- Owners of personal property
- Family members including:
 - Spouses
 - Adult children
 - Siblings
 - Grandchildren
- Personal representatives (estate executors)
- Professionals involved in:
 - Estate planning and probate
 - Downsizing and household moves
 - Assisted living and nursing homes
 - Estate sale and auctions
 - Faith-based communities
 - Funeral homes

Whether planning ahead or making decisions when someone dies, Who Gets Grandma's Yellow Pie Plate?™ resources will help families:

- Understand sensitivity of the issues
- Determine what they want to accomplish
- Decide what's "fair" for their family
- Understand belongings have different meanings to different individuals
- Consider distribution options and consequences
- Agree to manage conflicts if they arise

Who Gets Grandma's Yellow Pie Plate?™ resources can help!

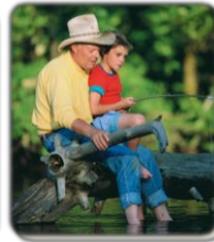

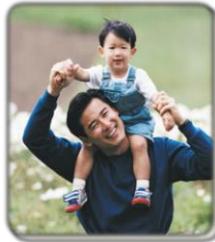

What People Are Saying

"I found this information extremely helpful because in July we were faced with disposing/dividing up my mother-in-law's possessions."

"In the last months of her life, my mother and I poured over Who Gets Grandma's Yellow Pie Plate?™ We made lists, laughed at items that were ridiculous to call valuable, and made decisions that have made our lives a joy at this time. Use this book. It can make something that could be hard into a marvelous gift for your family."

"As executor for my mother's estate, I needed help. I never expected my sisters to act the way they did! This information helped us sort out what we wanted, talk about what we thought was fair, and consider different options. It wasn't easy, but we are still talking."

"This no-nonsense workbook lovingly asks us to face the inevitable, and helps us get through the emotions, the memories, and the practicalities of distributing the collected stuff of a lifetime."

Who Gets Grandma's Yellow Pie Plate?™

Co-sponsored by Gentle Transitions and the Edina Senior Center

Presented by Marlene S. Stum, Ph.D., Professor and Extension Specialist in Family Social Science, University of Minnesota and lead researcher and author of Who Gets Grandma's Yellow Pie Plate™

Wednesday, May 16th, 10:30 a.m. – 12:00 p.m.

Location: Woodbury Central Park, Valley Creek Room
8595 Central Park Place, Woodbury, MN 55125

Cost: $5.00 per person to be paid at the time of registration. Participants will receive a workbook to guide family members through decision making. Gentle Transitions will cover additional cost of workbook.

Call to register: Woodbury Parks and Recreation at 651-714-3583 or Woodbury Central Park 651-714-3799
or register online at WoodburyRecreation.com

